IN COLLABORATION WITH:
 JOINT TRAINING COMMITTEE OF HIGHER EDUCATION INSTITUTIONS IN MALAYSIA (JALUMA)

INTRODUCTION :

ASEAN countries should share expertise to improve the quality of higher education in parallel with developed countries. Management and administration of universities should be provided with input and experience so that universities in ASEAN region will be capable to show the rapid development and progress, especially in terms of quality, standards and excellences which is recognized and accepted internationally or globally.

Drive towards excellence in world-class universities services requires a determination of a citizens who are able to work with strategic partners among existing institutions, across a range of disciplines, share experiences, and best practices to build strength to develop ASEAN as a hub for world-class quality education. To realize this action-focused, values and strategies for building a culture of excellence, build leadership coalitions, implement the programme in an ecosystem that synergize up to the ASEAN level needed to be set. This convention will also benefit the administrators from universities of ASEAN countries to develop human resource development, improve the quality of governance and services to enhance the competitiveness of the global arena.

Accordingly Joint Training Committee of Higher Education Institutions In Malaysia (JALUMA) intends to implement the Convention For Young Administrators In Asean Universities to train administrators at public universities to explore the boundaries of sharing powers, be realistic about the environment, ready to explore new knowledge in the management and administration, more innovative, creative and viable by mastering the ability to compete in the spirit of patriotism and integrity. The organization of this convention will positively impact the country to transform higher education systems in the context of good governance as the desire of the National Higher Education Strategic Plan.
